

Interim Executive

Having an experienced senior manager on staff is often key to resolving major issues and moving a company forward. Because seasoned managers have “been there, and done that” they can provide knowledgeable guidance to company owners and managers moving into unfamiliar territory.

A seasoned manager or advisor working part-time for your company can provide affordable, highly experienced help to “take your company to the next level”, or to provide a knowledgeable sounding board for solving your business challenges.

Expertise in Addressing Your Unique Issues

Insyte Consulting team members “join” the senior staff of companies on a limited, part-time basis. In the typical arrangement, an Insyte consultant works for a minimum of twenty hours per month on a month-to-month basis to participate in company planning, to lead functions within the company and to complete specific assignments. Insyte Consulting Interim Executives regularly participate in weekly management meetings, develop company processes and procedures, develop company presentations, plan marketing programs, interface with external professional services, visit strategic customers and lead changes in manufacturing processes among other activities. Interim Executives are available on an as needed basis to help handle unexpected issues and opportunities as they arise. Company managers often benefit from exposure to the Interim Executives who are experts in their fields.

Typical Projects

Insyte Consulting Interim Executives have and have had roles as:

- Advisor, Mentor, Coach and “Sounding Board” to the Business Owner
- Operations Senior Manager
- Financial Executive
- Marketing and Sales Senior Manager

The Insyte Consulting Advantage

Members of the Insyte Consulting team are both specialists and generalists. Many years of progressively increasing responsibility at various companies prior to joining Insyte Consulting have given them advanced experience in resolving issues and leading change within companies. In addition, their work at Insyte Consulting has given them a multi-industry, multi-functional perspective enabling them to provide a holistic approach to business. Our goal is to help you transform your company in a manner that makes sense for the unique characteristics of your company.

“Having both an Interim Financial Senior Manager and an Interim Marketing and Sales Manager on my senior staff has enabled me to affordably have access to senior management skills to help grow my company faster.”
